

Microsoft Audio Conferencing

No internet? No problem.

You can still join Microsoft Teams meetings when you don't have an internet connection.

business

Always make the meeting

Business doesn't sit still. Sometimes you're away from your desk (and the wifi) at exactly the time you need to be in a meeting. Or maybe everyone in your team is working in different places. With Microsoft Audio Conferencing on our award-winning network¹, no one will miss a thing. It's the quick and easy way to join Microsoft Teams meetings when you're on the go and without an internet connection.

Microsoft Audio Conferencing is cost-effective too because all you need is a phone. Wherever you and your team are in the world, you simply dial a number, put in your PIN, say your name, and away you go.

When there's no wifi

Depending on where you're working, you might not be able to connect to wifi. Rather than using your mobile data on a long video call, dial in instead.

When a meeting is audio only

Video conferencing isn't always required. You just need to hear – clearly – what your teams, customers or partners have to say.

When you're on the go

Business is rarely static. Like times when you're out and about and need to join a meeting on time. And if your wifi signal isn't that great, buffering on video calls means you can miss key parts of the conversation.

Do more than just dial in

Stay connected

If you're working remotely and can't use the Microsoft Teams app, Microsoft Audio Conferencing is perfect. It means you can still join the meeting from your phone using a single shared number without spending loads more money.

Keep it simple

With Microsoft Audio Conferencing, you won't need a password or to download new software to join a meeting. All you'll need is a number to dial in and a conference ID. It's that simple.

Invite everyone

It's easy to host meetings with Microsoft Audio Conferencing. The dial-in details will be included on calendar invites. The meeting organiser can change everything from PIN length to the call number via the settings. And they can invite as many as 250 people to join.

Get all these extras only with O₂
